

ActiFindex(TM) Indexes Deliver Breakthrough 2007 Performance

January 23, 2008

17 of 18 Indexes Beat Benchmark, Average Outperformance of 500 BPS

with an Average Beta of only 0.90

WELLESLEY, Mass.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--January 23, 2008--

F-Squared Investments reported that the 2007 year-end results for its family of 18 ActiFindex(TM) indexes generated returns that were impressive both for their level of outperformance versus traditional benchmarks, as well as for the consistency of performance across the entire index family, it was announced today by Howard Present, President and CEO.

The ActiFindex indexes, published daily by the American Stock Exchange and covering 15 different asset classes, are the industry's first set of indexes constructed from a highly selective number of top-rated, actively-managed mutual funds. These indexes cover three broad investment objectives, including: sector indexes (PrecisionAlpha(TM)); conventional long-only large-, mid- and small-cap indexes; and retirement income indexes (designed specifically for systematic withdrawal portfolios). Each is comprised of a select number (typically ten) of the best mutual funds in their respective asset class, as determined by third party, independent investment research consultants: Mesirov Financial (providing investment oversight for the six PrecisionAlpha sector indexes); Klein Decisions (providing oversight for the nine broad market indexes); and Kanon Bloch Carre (providing oversight for the three retirement income indexes).

On a relative performance basis versus traditional benchmarks (i.e., S&P 500, Russell family of indexes, Dow Jones Sector indexes), the 17 indexes with full-year performance figures generated an average of 537 basis points of annual outperformance.

Significantly, these results represented an average beta of only 0.90, or a risk level 10% less than the comparable market benchmark. Notable standouts include:

-- ActiFindex Risk Adjusted Large Core, which returned 11.6% versus 5.5% for the S&P 500, beta of 0.93.

-- ActiFindex PrecisionAlpha(TM) Natural Resources, which returned 39.8% versus 34.4% for the DJ GSSI Natural Resources, beta of 1.02.

-- ActiFindex PrecisionAlpha Financials, returning -9.5% versus -21.4% for the DJ US Financials, beta of 0.77.

-- ActiFindex Retirement Income Large Growth, returning 17.0% versus 11.8% for the Russell 1000 Growth, beta of 0.80.

-- ActiFindex Risk Adjusted Small Growth, returning 17.1% versus 7.1% for the Russell 2000 Growth, beta of 0.83.

"The bottom line is that we believe we have harnessed a more powerful, repeatable, and reliable means of extracting the investment value add from active management," noted Present. "The results of 2007 further validate this powerful investment approach."
